Digital Transformation in Banking

The pace of digital disruption in the banking industry is increasing exponentially. Technology trends, changes in consumer behaviour and market dynamics are reinforcing each other. Industry lines are blurring. Open Banking is reinventing the playing field where traditional incumbents, new competitors and technology players not only compete but also collaborate with each other. In this dynamic environment, Digital Transformation for banks is more key than ever. What lessons can be drawn from over the world? And how does that apply to the market context in Pakistan?

7 principles for a successful Digital Transformation

For most organizations, and more specifically for large institutions, the stages to get to digital maturity take time. Why? Because most organizations are slow by design. They are designed to minimize risks and not maximize freedom and speed. Looking back at our experiences with large clients across the globe, we believe that there are 7 key transformation drivers to take into account when designing your transformation journey. We will discover them together.

How AI is disrupting the banking industry

Did you know that Artificial intelligence (AI) is one of the most commonly referenced terms by financial institutions and payments firms when describing their vision for the future of financial services? During the workshop, we will explore and illustrate through concrete example how AI is disrupting the banking industry, and how organizations can leverage on it to create value.

Keynote Speeches and Panelist

Amongst those participating in the conference and workshops will be representatives from the State Bank of Pakistan, Presidents, CEOs, Deputy CEOs from the banking industry, Telecom Operators, Fintech and Service providers
